

Margaret Bloor
28 May 2018

I think they should have the car they are driving crushed. If it is stolen then maybe not but it would deter other people from lending them their cars. Of-course the rate of stolen cars would sky rocket. But not if they are just going from home or the pub.

Put the offender through courses, take them to hospitals and see the out comes of their and others work they have done to innocent victims. Show them the way all the families lives have been affected. Including their own family.

Other than doing all of this and giving them a goal term nothing will stop people being naughty.

Yours sincerely,
Margaret Bloor.